

gather.town is very different from other video conferencing platforms.

The Basic Idea:

You are a character on a map, and you can move around to interact with other characters who are close by. It's as close as we can get to replicating real-life labs.

Move close to someone to start up a video chat
Go into a private space and talk without being overheard by people outside the space
Anyone standing at the podium (center right of the room) can broadcast to the whole room Stand near a white board (top and bottom of room) and press x to bring it up to write and draw on

Raise your hand using the control at the bottom of the screen

Locate someone using the controls at the right.

Which brings up a path to follow to take you to the person you want to find
